Khmer Movement for Democracy: CLV-DTA Withdrawal - A New Victory for the People

The Khmer Movement for Democracy (KMD) celebrates the Cambodian people's victory with the government's decision to withdraw from the CLV-DTA. This victory marks a significant milestone, but it's only the first of many steps to come on the journey towards a Better Cambodia.

The KMD has consistently called for an end to the CLV-DTA, arguing that it has been used by the regime to suppress dissent and consolidate power. The government's decision to abandon the initiative is a clear acknowledgment of the growing public opposition to its policies.

This victory is a testament to the power of peaceful protest and the resilience of the Cambodian people. The KMD urges the Cambodian government to take bold and decisive action to address the deep-rooted problems facing the nation. The release of all political prisoners, including the 90 individuals recently jailed, is a crucial step towards reconciliation and national unity.

The regime must not stop here. The people demand more. End corruption, end the theft of Cambodia's resources, and end the enrichment of regime members. Restore freedom and democracy to the Cambodian people.

The KMD remains steadfast in its commitment to a free and democratic Cambodia. We will continue to work tirelessly to achieve these goals, both domestically and internationally.

The KMD calls for renewed engagement, empowerment, and determination from the Khmer people, both at home and abroad. With your strong support we will continue to fight for a better Cambodia. The Khmer diaspora, a beacon of hope for the oppressed, must remain steadfast in their support for the struggle for freedom and justice.
